GENERAL NEWS

The Norwegians of Camrose are petitioning for a vice-consul to be located there.

The hotel at Ferintosh was opened on Monday, Sept. 23. Three hundred guests attended the dinner, and a dance was given later in the evening.

Occupying a cell in the police station at Calgary, while awaiting the arrival of detectives to take him back to Toronto is Roy Thomas, son of a wealthy eastern king's councillor, and nephew of the head of the Allan steamship company. Young Thomas is alleged to have secured a number of worthless cheques by which he secured hundreds of dollars.

Camrose has re-organized its curling club for the coming winter.

Thomas Hartnett, an engineer at Mile 106, B.C., was instantly killed last Saturday afternoon, when a locomotive jumped the track and buried him under its massive weight. The deceased lived at Rivers, Man.

J. D. Ross, who escaped from Constable Wiseman, while being taken to Wainwright for trial, was captured near Killam where he was posing as a detective.

Three month courses in specially created agricultural courses at Olds, Claresholm, and Vermilion for farmers' sons who can only take the courses during the winter is the latest move of the department of agriculture in its endeavor to educate the farmers of the province to go in more for mixed farming. Already arrangements are being made for the erection of the college buildings and for board for the students during the time they are in attendance.

Col. Hogg has completed a new residence on his farm near Delburne, Alta.

Owing to the disappearance of the tax rolls for 1910 and 1911 of the town of Wainwright it has been impossible to make an audit of the town's books.

A. C. Laney was the recipient of an illuminated address and a gold watch by the members of the police force on the occasion of his relinquishing office as chief of police in Edmonton.

Alexander Mitchell, a 10-year-old boy, who pleaded guilty to robbing mail in the Regina post office was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Mitchell broke down while the magistrate was addressing him and was carried from the court room in a faint.

Malcolm M. Gillis, publicity commissioner, of Wetsaskiwin has quit his office. The citizens of Wetsaskiwin have fallen down in their effort to raise enough money to pay for an advertising campaign, and the commissioner engaged a few months ago has been forced to resign.

DIFFICULTY IN MOVING ALBERTA'S CROP

The prospective wheat crop of Alberta this year is estimated at 25,000,000 bushels. The prospects are the amount shipped out of the province before the close of navigation will be less than 8,000,000 bushels, or one-third of the crop.

The conditions in Alberta this year have been very favorable to the grain growers. Grain has been harvested a little earlier than last year, and in quality the crop is uniformly excellent. The grade will be considerably higher than last year and the yield will average higher than that of 1911.

There is no doubt now of the physical impossibility of the transportation of one-half of the crop out of the country, under present conditions. Last year only 7,000,000 bushels were shipped out before the close of navigation. The movement up-to-date this year is considerably less than that of a similar period last year.

The situation is becoming acute. The lack of transportation facilities constitutes a grave menace to the grain growers and the gravity of the situation is realized everywhere.

POST OFFICE AT TEES ROBBED

The post office at Tees was broken into last Monday night and $45 in money and stamps stolen. The robbers or robbers also entered a room in the hotel there, and carried the clothes belonging to the occupant into another room and purloined all the valuables, which, however, only amounted to $1.35.

The perpetrators of the theft seem to have left no clue as to their identity, but the case is now in the hands of the police who will make an investigation.

CHICKENS PLENTIFUL BUT WILD

On Tuesday last, Oct. 1st, the open season for the shooting of prairie chicken and partridge commenced, and local sportsmen were out in numbers. The birds are very plentiful this season but are extremely wild—so say the hunters who have been out. The season lasts for the balance of this month.

Attend the meeting in Lamerton, Sat. afternoon next, and discuss the Municipalities Act.

were appointed a committee to interview S. G. Dunham in regard to the expending of money raised on property in village of Mirror.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mah Bing for the use of his restaurant as a place of meeting, when the members of Board were addressed by Major M. E. Dickson, editor of the Chicago Examiner.

RETURN GAME OF TENNIS WON BY ALIX

The return tennis match between Alix and Mirror on Wednesday afternoon on the local court, resulted in a win for the visitors, who won 4 sets out of 5. In the first game, Bally and Oughton, for Alix, beat Suggert and Good 6-3, and in the second repeated the dose by 6-2.

The games between Matthews and Bell, of Alix, and Rand and McCormack, of Mirror, were keenly contested. The first game was in favor of Alix, 9-7 being the score. Mirror won the second by 6-3, and the deciding game was a fight from start to finish, the score being tied four times, finally ending with the visitors in the lead by 9-7, the same as the first game.

The last sets were well played and the contestants put up a fine game, playing 41 altogether.

A report from Calgary states that the quantity of No. 1 hard wheat threshed in Alberta this year will be at least ten times as much as last year. The prospect is that at least half the 1912 crop will grade No. 1 hard and No. 1 and No. 2 Northern. So far, more than half as much No. 1 hard has been inspected at Calgary as was marketed altogether last year.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL

The question of Consolidated Rural Schools, which has lately been introduced in Mirror and district, seems to be working to advantage in several sections of Manitoba, and the following illustrates the plan followed in one school district:

"The Vermillion school district, lying northwest of the town of Dauphin, consolidated with the town district in 1909.

Two vans were provided, costing $425, including the sleighs. These vans accommodate from eighteen to twenty-three children each. They are furnished with robes and foot-warmers during the winter. One of the vans begins the route eight miles west, but travels sometimes more than this gathering the children on the route, reaching town five minutes before the time for the opening of school. The driver is paid $3.00 per school day that he drives. He furnishes team and harness and keeps them in repair. The other man begins the route nearly five miles out, but travels over seven miles picking up his load, for which he is paid $3.00 per school day.

This consolidation has been working since September 1st, 1909, and the system is growing in favor with the parents and ratepayers. It costs them a little more than when conducting their own schools but they say that results are so much better that they are willing to pay a higher school rate. They have the superior advantage of full collegiate institute course and manual training, which it would be utterly impossible to have in their single room school.

The special school tax paid on an average quarter section of land in the rural part of that district last year was $17.50. Thirty children were enrolled from the rural parts, and the average attendance of these was 21, or 70 per cent, of the enrollment. This is a much better showing than was made of the school children of the town. Eight of the rural pupils were taking up entrance and college work."

WHY NOT ONE FOR MIRROR?

The Laurentia Milk Company of Alberta, which only a few months ago was comparatively a new firm in Western circles, will soon have sixty factories operating in this province. The head office for Alberta is at Red Deer, with factories already in operation at Red Deer, Sylvan Lake, Bowden and Olds. After repeated analytical tests it has been found that homogenized milk is up to all standards as far as the percentages of nutrient solids is concerned. The butter fat in the milk is so finely divided that it does not collect on the surface of the milk, as is the case ordinarily when cream is formed. In homogenized milk the fat is scattered evenly all through the milk, giving it a creamy appearance generally. In its analysis the milk is of excellent quality, and as it is completely sterilized will keep indefinitely if the bottle is not opened.

THE NEWSPAPERS RIGHT TO SOLICIT ADVERTISING

What shall the country publisher exclude from his advertising columns is a question dealt with at considerable length in the last issue of the Western Editor published in Winnipeg. At the present time it would be almost impossible for any of the large mail order catalogue houses or departmental concerns to arrange an advertising contract with any of the smaller papers of the country. The ground the newspaper man takes on this question is that it is not fair to the local merchant and to the building up of home trade to give the departmental store an equal chance with the small merchant in the advertising columns. The Western Editor does not entirely agree with this contention and argues that: "If a newspaper man were to suggest to the local dealer that the latter refuse to sell his wares to a representative of an outside departmental store and deal only with his home people, the merchant would almost assume that the editor was becoming daft. Yet, in effect, that is what the local business man in many centres demands from his home paper. The stock-in-trade of a newspaper, out of which it makes the greater part of its revenue is advertising space and the publisher has a right to square deal in disposing of it and also to urge that he be not unduly hampered in having his customers classified for him." In this same connection there are other points to be considered. Every live newspaper devotes almost regularly space towards boosting its own community and urging its readers to patronize home industry and thus build up their local trade. And how often is it required for its efforts by finally disposing of some of the very merchants it has endeavored to protect, have been guilty of sending their job printing to the city.

GRAIN AT TERMINAL POINTS

The president of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway system predicts a more serious grain blockade than has ever occurred before, but points out that it is the facilities for removing the grain from the terminals and not the railways that are at fault.

The three railways, the G. T. P., C. N. R. and C. P. R., are in a position as far as rolling stock is concerned, to move all the grain they will be asked to handle, but it cannot be removed from the terminal points. There is now at Montreal, as is well known, a considerable quantity of last year's grain awaiting removal. Labor troubles in England have contributed towards the probable blockade by delaying steamships to take the grain away with proper despatch.

A Maine clergyman, living at the hotel in his town, ordered a typewriter and had it sent to his room. It came when the clergyman was out, and the proprietor took charge of it. When the minister returned the proprietor led him behind the desk and whispered: "That case of yours is on the lee, parson. I guess it will be all right by dinner-time."

I Want You For My Neighbor

In the Prize-Winning District of B. C.

THURER is hardly a man, woman or child in Canada, who can read but have heard of my famous Honeymoon Place fruit and poultry ranch, on the Main Kootenay Lake in British Columbia. You haven't seen the Kootenays without visiting my ranch. I live there myself, it is my home. I spent five years locating this ideal spot. I lived on the Pacific Coast—Portland, Ore.; Hood River, Ore.; Yakima Valley, Washington, Seattle and Vancouver for five years, trying to find out which of the districts I wanted, for my home—none suited me like the Kootenay Lake district. Here we do not have to irrigate as they do in the Hood River, Yakima, Okanagan and East Kootenay district. We do not have the rainy season as on the Coast. Our climatic conditions are just right. The Main Kootenay Lake never freezes over; heating and fishing the year around. In the Fall big game of all kinds can be had by sportsmen who are willing to go back fifteen miles or so into the mountains. Wild ducks, geese and chickens are plentiful, and fishing—If you have never landed any of our Kootenay Lake rainbow trout—you don't know what fishing is, besides catching salmon trout that will weigh from ten to thirteen pounds is no easy trick, and when it comes to eating them you wouldn't wonder why I like Kootenay Lake. Of course, fish are all right, but if you enjoy fruit of all kinds—such as apples, peaches, pears, apricots, cherries, raspberries, grapes, blackberries, strawberries, etc.—you will never find a place where they will "go to the spot" as in our district, where we have just the right amount of rain to insure good crops. Do not suppose our fruit is fruit grown in an irrigated district. Our fruit has that delicate delicious flavor such as is found in choice fruit grown in the Eastern States and Provinces. Send for the October number of the "Kootenay Magazine" and it will tell you all you want to know about Southern B.C., fully illustrated (postpaid 25c). It gives briefly my plan on how to bring apples into commercial bearing two years. "Harris' New Method of Apple Culture" should interest every fruit grower in Canada. Where you made $1,000 per acre from apples, you can by my method make $2,000. The October number also contains a story of my "Five Years Homeseeking" which will interest anyone wanting to find an ideal home in the West. There are scores of fine photos of orchards and scenes of interest in the Kootenay district. Tell you of my selling plan. "$1 down and $1 per week proposition" for an acre of improved fruit land is one plan. "$20 down and $10 per month" for five acres—one acre cleared and planted and taken care of for five years, you to share in crops after the second year, is another plan. "$50 down and $25 per month" is another plan for ten acres. A discount of 10 per cent. for cash.

Land selling at from $50 to $150 per acre, over 5,000 acres to select from. Next regular monthly excursion to my offerings in B. C. will be on September 25th, leaving Winnipeg at 10:40 p. m. Read the many letters in the magazine from satisfied buyers—they are genuine. If you cannot go out with me on my next excursion to make your own selection, I will make it for you. All tracts will be raised $25 per acre after October 1st. They are worth $200 per acre right now—I should ask it, but I want to give several hundred more "homeseekers" like myself a chance to buy right and if I use you right you will be a desirable neighbor. That is what I want, good, clean, desirable neighbors and you cannot buy land from me unless you are right. I have sold to over four hundred people since January 1st, and I have yet to find one that I would be ashamed to call my neighbor. Write me, giving the name of at least one reliable reference, state nationality—if married—and amount you wish to invest and I will send you more particulars regarding the wonderful opportunities in the Kootenay Lake District. Remember, I live there myself—have my own fruit and poultry ranch. I wouldn't ask you to take where I would not be willing to. This is worth your careful consideration.

THE END OF THE THREAD

And What Came of It

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Philina Clode loved his silk umbrellas, about the clothing industry therefrom and opened the front door of the boarding house.

As he entered the clover red carpeted hall a kitten playing with a spool of white thread dived away with a wave of a "flicking" small tail, leaving the spool on the floor with the loose thread running under the heavy curtains that hung before the parlor door.

"Tut, tut," said Mr. Clode under his bushy white eyebrows, "that kitten has been playing with the spool and spoiled it. I'll have to throw it away. His pet and orderly miff was shocked at the sight of the tangled thread on the floor.

So he began to wind it on to the spool, and he wound until he reached the end of the thread, which he coiled neatly in the little notch cut in the end of the spool and dropped the spool on the table beside the parlor door. At least Mr. Clode thought he dropped the spool there, but as a matter of fact it rolled off into the umbrella stand and fell among the folds of Mr. Clode's silk umbrellas.

At the dinner table Philina Clode was pleased to note that a newcomer was placed opposite to him, a small, fair woman, rather delicate looking, and as she walked into the dining room he noted that she looked slightly. Mrs. Bennett, his landlady, introduced Philina to the stranger. Her name was Miss Cynthia Bennett, and "Miss Philina is my second cousin," Mrs. Bennett said, smiling at the middle aged landlady, who was in every respect her "sister." "She is going to remain with me all winter."

Philina Clode felt a vague pleasure in knowing that he would have the sweet faced vis-a-vis for several months.

"The name of Mr. Clode's umbrella," said Mrs. Bennett dryly as she picked up the spool and handed it to Miss Philina. Mrs. Bennett did not like the Clode—tut, tut, not since he had given her plainly to understand that he was quite satisfied with his state of single blessedness. Mrs. Bennett was a stout, round woman.

"So long," murmured Miss Chace, taking herself and her stenographic assistance from the house, and she was immediately followed by Mrs. Bennett.

"Haven't the slightest idea how it happened," Miss Philina murmured, "but I'm sure it's a very curious thing. As Miss Philina looked oddly at it, "that is, I thought I placed the spool on the table last night. It must have fallen into my umbrella."

"But where did you find it, Mr. Clode?" asked the little woman gently. Then Philina recollected all about the kitten which had been playing with a spool of thread in the front hall the evening before and how he had rescued the spool and carefully wound the loose thread upon it and finally had fastened the little loop in the end of the thread in the notch in the spool.

"Miss Philina shook her head regretfully. "Ah, Mr. Clode, see what you have done. It was your umbrella that spoiled the thread, the pattern of midsummer love."

"I haven't taken your lace?" Mrs. Bennett, his next neighbor, asked. "No, no, I didn't say any one had taken it," protested Miss Philina, with a shocked glance around the table. "I merely said I had lost it."

Mentally Philina Clode ate his dinner quite innocent of any part in the disappearance of the lace. He had planned out his evening with the same precision that he devoted to the neatly laid ledgers in the ware house where he had been housekeeper for many years.

As soon as he had eaten his dinner he would walk three times around the block while he smoked a cigar. Then he would return to his boarding house and read the evening paper to his comfortable alone bedroom.

As soon as he had met Miss Philina, however, he thought he recognized the clock, conversational mind of a chess player. If she didn't play, he thought, he might play with her.

So after he had walked around the block three times and returned to the boarding house prior to report that the rain had ceased, although the sky was still overcast, he found the situation at the round table where he was engaged in some intricate needlework which required the drawing of many threads from a piece of linen and then through the threads in the fabric, he felt groups that daily evolved into a charming pattern.

"This is called draw work," explained Miss Philina in response to his question.

"The lace you lost—I heard you mention it at the table—was it something like this?" Philina glanced vaguely around the room as though to doubt some lucky chance might reveal the hiding place of the thread.

"No, no, indeed. It was knitted lace. It was such a pretty pattern."

"What was it like?" asked Philina. "It was lovely. I was interested in it."

"I was a dainty design of wreaths and leaves and blossoms, and I planned to use it as a bit of a pattern which was drawn in an ancient, old style. I was very interested in it."

"They lent their hands over the lace pattern, and a faint color blossomed in each face."

"I hope—may be prophetic?" "I hope it may be prophetic?" "I hope it may be prophetic?"

and drawing more and more upon Miss Philina was no secret. "Well," said Miss Philina, dropping her work and folding her pretty white hands, "I had a book of patterns of this kind with me when I was here. A friend of mine who visited me here before I left home. She has since died, but the book is still here. I will make it over to you."

"Midsummer love," repeated Philina reminiscently, "seems to me I used to know a song called that."

"Yes, that was one I used to know that," said Miss Philina. "And Miss Philina hummed under her breath in a sweet, rich tone, and Philina joined in his low tenor, and they both laughed and looked quiet when the bridge players at the other end of the room entered their order."

After while Miss Philina went to the piano and played some accompaniments for Philina, who sang "The Soldier's Parole" and "Mary of Aram." Then, to Philina's delight, he learned that Miss Philina was a devoted chess player, and the rest of the evening was spent in a quiet corner of the room over the chess table.

At exactly 8:20 the next morning Philina Clode went on his hat and mackintosh and picked his umbrella which had just left, and Philina joined again. As he accomplished this apparently unimportant act Miss Philina came slowly down the stairs, with all the same moment there emerged from the dining room, and Miss Philina, the stenographer.

"Miss Philina," said Mrs. Bennett, "I have just seen your lace. Miss Philina."

"Did you find your lace, Miss Philina?" "No, indeed, not a trace of it."

"Where did it go?" asked Mrs. Bennett. "I believe so," replied Philina, giving his umbrella a little shake as he opened the front door.

"Then that spool of thread fell out and rolled slowly down the breadth of the carpet?" "Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Bennett, smiling slightly at Miss Philina, who murmured "I believe so."

THE HORSEMAN.

See to it that the horse's teeth are in good trim. Oats are too high in price to feed them with out return.

The development of the young horse requires the exercise of the best judgment in banding.

After the day's work is over see that the mud is cleaned off the fetlocks and that the stall has plenty of good clean straw for the night.

Just sure on more acres than your horse can comfortably handle. Forty to fifty acres is a good season's work for the average horse.

A dull, useless manner does not necessarily denote gentleness in a horse. A husband may be quiet, as a rule, but you can never depend upon him.

The careful horse you breed your colts and mares to be good, breeding the market with minks.

The Tamworth is the best breed of hog. The body is extremely long and moderately deep. The legs, the head and the neck are also long and coarse, while the ears are of the hog of the land type. The back is not so good as that of most other breeds. The Tamworths are good eaters, very prompt and the meat is of the highest quality. The best source of a good type of Tamworth.

MANY YEARS AN INVALID—UNTOLD AGONY FROM HEAD-ACHES

Dizziness, Stinking Sores and Excessive Weakness Disappeared With Use of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Nearly every woman will read with interest the letter of Mrs. Geo. Bradshaw, quoted below. It tells of years of great suffering from Nervous Headache and other symptoms acting from weak, watery blood, and a starved and exhausted condition of the nervous system.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Cozy Nook, Harlowe, Ont., writes:—"I am glad to state that I received benefit from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which I failed to get any place else. I was troubled for many years, in fact from my early womanhood, with weak, watery blood, and I suffered untold agonies from nervous sick headaches, dizziness, and stinking sores. In fact was a semi-invalid for many years. I tried many kinds of patent medicines, but got no help, and tried every new doctor that came along, but they did not help me. Doctors told me I had no blood, and that my heart and kidneys were diseased, and that I had so many complaints there was not much use in doctoring up one or two. Four years ago I took six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and was glad to see I felt better, and then got six more, and they cured me of many of my complaints. When I began taking Nerve Food I weighed 110 pounds, and today I weigh 139, and am 45 years old.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Explained

Very few hairpins are made in France, most of its supply coming from England and Germany.

Guarding a Royal Train
Few people know that the passage of a Royal Train is surrounded every year of the way, by the journey of the Sovereign short or long. Many people launch when they read of lines upon lines of soldiers drawn up along the railway and the Royal train where the Czar travels; but the same thing practically occurs in Russia, only without the ostentatious display of uniforms. The Emperor, who the Royal Train is, is quite as effectively guarded, though in all appearance there is nobody there.

A German merchant, resident in Moscow, has left all his fortune, amounting to half a million, to all those of his employees who have served him for five years or more. Their portions are to be reckoned on the basis of the first annual wage multiplied by the number of years they have been in his service. Those who have worked less than five years receive a joint sum of $10,000, which is to be divided according to wages and length of service. The staff have decided to organize the business and have by them into a joint stock company.

Schoolgirl An Athlete
For the third year in succession a Northampton girl has won the sports championship of the London County schools in South London.

Nellie Stockwell, 13, and the daughter of the keeper of the Northampton stock market, was the champion medal won in the school, athletic contest, which she was first in six events and second in four others.

She won the championship first when she was nine, and has secured every year since, and has more competitors have numbered more than 1,500 each time.

"I don't train in any special way, and I don't have any special food," said my father gives me plenty of sugar, and I have runner's shoes. Besides her sports trophies, Nellie has a first-class swimming cap and, until recently she was captain of the net ball team of her school. Also she can show five medals for good conduct and attendance.

Up to now she has captured thirty-one prizes of different kinds.

A Grim Proviso
A curious occupation has sprung up in Paris. Several doctors have received a thrasher from a newly-formed agency, which offers to find patients for them. The fee is rather high. They vary from $25 to $50. On receipt of the fee the doctor is assured a list of 25 consumptives, 20 epileptics, 20 people suffering from cancer and so forth. He is then at liberty to call and offer his services. The agency circular declares that the list of patients are compiled from absolutely certain sources and that the money will be returned if there are more than three mistakes in each list. This is rather a grim proviso.

A Remarkable Dog
A dog which had, during nine years of his life, collected upwards of 15,000 coins under remarkable conditions, died on Saturday at Reading. The money had been devoted to local charities. The dog never carried a box, but begged for a coin. For a half-penny the dog demanded a biscuit as a condition of releasing the coin, and two biscuits were required in exchange for a penny or two coins. In the dog's long life he saved 15,000 biscuits in his philanthropic collecting.

Collier's Nimble Wit
While the king was looking at a pet pony which had been brought up for his inspection the pony proved somewhat unmanageable. "I expect the daylight worried him, said the king. "No, sir, replied the minor, it is the headwind, he doesn't like. He can't see your majesty plain enough."—London Spectator.

Anxious to Know
Officer, she said, hastening to the policeman that person has been following me for an hour.

No, but I wish you would find out whether he thinks I'm beautiful or is just running round me because I wear a panther skirt and carry a cane.—The Birmingham Age Herald.

Sometimes Lengthy
I believe honesty pays in the long run. So do I, but I often wish it were not such a mighty long run.—Chicago Record-Herald.

In Chertch, Okla. at the state orphans' home there was a little chap whose wit was about of his memory. His teacher was having a time teaching him the Presidents in rotation. Johnny, Johnny, she admonished, when I was your age I could say the president's names forward and backward, and begin in the middle and go either way. She was much taken back by the reply, but when you were my age there wasn't many presidents.

Calling Pa
Ma put over a good one on pa, all right, all right.

What was it? I was putting up a shelf in the pantry and accidentally hit my thumb with the hammer. While he was dancing round, saying a lot of aw, that's me, run into the kitchen and said: John, stop that hammering right away. Just remember you're not out in a baseball park now.—Detroit Free Press.

Women are Inconvenient, always.
What is the matter now? That girl was supposed to be installed upon giving me a lot of her property and now she has attached it in a breach of promise action.

One Charitable Act
Hubby—Well, I did one charitable act today.
What was it? I was glad, dear. Tell me all about it.
Hubby—Oh, there isn't much to tell. One of my clerks asked for an increase in salary so that he could get married and I referred to give it to him.

Evidences of Experience
What makes you think that man has had experience with sailboats and canoes?
He doesn't show any inclination to get into any of them.—Washington Star.

As in a Mirror
Stranger at the door—"I am trying to find a lady whose name I have forgotten. Do you know she lives in this neighborhood. She is a singularly beautiful creature, with pink and white complexion, raven hair, lovely eyes, and hair such as a goddess might have. I referred to give it to him."

Dearest—Heavily, sir, I don't know of it.

Voices from head of stairs—Jane tell the gentleman I'll be down in a minute.

He—"I should like you, what would happen."

He—"Then I won't do it."

He—"I should like father in Europe—Lip Phillips's Magazine."

Husbab—You extravagance is awful. When I die you'll probably leave me a fortune.

Wife—Well I should be better off if I had any practice.—London Opinion.

That New Hat
The young wife, refused a new hat. Calmly explained that she had a lot to put up with.

Yes, replied her husband, and if you knew how little I have to put up with you would not ask me to put up for a day.

Lawyer—You claim to be a professor. What is your degree and where did you get it?
Witness—The only degree I ever got was the third degree, and the police gave it to me.

Longest English Word
What is the longest word in our language. The query has been suggested to a correspondent by the present discussion as to disestablishment. Our reader has found disestablishment in his dictionary and we presume there is no objection to adding the prefix anti, and obtaining a word of twenty-five letters. A goodly number and one which ought to carry conviction by sheer weight.—London Chronicle.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.
Science to Imitate Nature
The view has been advanced in more than one quarter that during the next, two or three centuries invention probably will be in the direction of imitating the wonderful economy and the simple direct methods of Nature. An instance at the point is the electric coil. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest the organ above a sudden nervous impulse from the spinal cord sends a series of little sparks and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Fireless, light, and making deep, dark, and dense light without heat at a cost which could make a match an extravagant outlay.—Larger's Weekly.

A dime-the-lot photographic machine is, it is announced, about to be put on the market. The latter places the coin in the slot and pulls a lever; the mechanism turns on an electric light, drops a plate into position behind the lens, opens the shutters for three seconds, develops and washes the plate, and in fifteen seconds delivers the print, finished and in a neat frame. If the mechanism should fail to work the dime is automatically returned.

Do fishes remember? A scientist who has been investigating the question found that by placing a red cylinder in the aquarium with a single fish that the fish learned to enter the red cylinder each time it was immersed and avoided the other one. Moreover, the fish went into the red vessel and in fifteen seconds delivered the print, finished and in a neat frame. If the mechanism should fail to work the dime is automatically returned.

A root cellar like this won a prize last year.

THE drawing was made from a photograph of the root-cellar with which D. A. Purdy, of Lumsden, Sask., won a cash prize in last year's contest. In that last contest there were 36 prizes. There will be three times as many prizes (108) in this year's contest.

1912 FARMERS' PRIZE CONTEST

THIS year you will have three times as many chances of winning a cash prize. You do not have to own any certain amount of Canada Cement to win a prize. There are absolutely no "strings" to this offer.

There are twelve prizes for each Province (three of $10; three of $25; three of $50; and three of $100) and you compete only with other farmers in your own Province and not with those all over Canada.

It makes no difference whether you have ever used cement. Many of last year's winners had not used it until they entered the contest. When you write for full particulars, we will send you, free, a book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," which tells everything you need to know about concrete. It is absolutely free, and you are under no obligation to buy "Canada" Cement or to do anything else for us.

Write now your name and address on the back of this card, and send it to our nearest agent, and we will send you the book and full particulars of the 1912 Prize Contest.

Prof. Muirhead took an experience of the world in examining some Birmingham children in moral teaching. He asked them to tell him the first three stages of life. One bright child returned the following: There are three stages of life. The first is when we are very young, and think of the world as a place which we shall have to do when we are older; and this is the age of innocence. The second is when we are older, and are able to do the wicked things which we thought about when we were young, and this is the prime of life. ### About the Municipalities Act

We have taken the liberty of reproducing the following letter which appeared in the Dayland Press, and which will be of interest to our readers. Inasmuch that a vote will be taken on the Municipalities Act in the district on Oct. 12. It is well for the ratepayers to thoroughly understand the provisions of the Act, before giving their consent thereto.

Dear Sir: In a recent issue you requested your readers to give their reasons for defeating the Municipalities Bill. I fear it would take up too much of your valuable space to give them all.

The Saskatchewan Municipalities Bill gave power to the municipalities to tax "speculators" land the full amount expended in killing off the gophers on such lands. And, again, hamlets or small villages not incorporated as such are included in the rural districts where they are located. What chance would the farmers in such a position have of electing the councillor in that division there being no limit to the population the hamlet may have before it is forced to become an incorporated village; and again, the councillors are compelled to spend fifty per cent. of the assessment and if an assessment is not enough to take care of the emergency work, then the farmers must contribute towards it from the general assessment. The farmers also are made liable for all bridges and roads, etc. Therefore, should we, we say, a threshing outfit fall through a bridge in passing over the same, if there were no notice to prevent and the machine be ruined, the farmers would have to settle. Cases like the above have been decided in favor of the owner before now. There is no justice in making the farmer alone liable for all damages to anybody and everybody. The public highway should at least be the concern of all in the matter of damages, and, again, the farmers in this "Will-o-the-Wisp" election, were called upon to pay all expenses. Next November, in the license vote, the Government as a whole will foot the bill. May we ask our M. P.'s why this discrimination? This bill has been amended several times since its passage and each time made so much worse. It was distinctly understood when this bill was before the Legislature that the old L. I. D. would not be interfered with, until the people voted on the new bill. Has the Liberal Government kept faith? There was provision in the bill authorizing the committee to have date and place of polling to vote on this measure advertised in what few papers we have in Alberta. It is a safe bet that two per cent. of the voters never knew when or where the vote was taken. The Liberal Government cannot be excused for this. Now, Sir, Geo. P. Smith, M.P., tried to show that the expenditure, at least one-half, would be expended proportionately; would you please give your readers section 108 and see how the little joker at the bottom allows the council to evade it; also if it were possible to give your readers chapter 5, they would readily see how impos-slide it would be to carry out all the powers that are given them without increased taxation, or better, let each farmer spend 75c and get a copy of this ordinance. In conclusion, as the vote throughout on the bill was taken in the most slip-shod method, it is the duty of the Government to re-submit the entire question to the rural districts at a given date—say April, 1913—said date to be properly advertised in the local paper issued nearest to the place of voting; that the said vote be taken all over the province on the same day; that all members of committee and road officers shall be resident electors of the municipality for which they are supposed to act. In this way I believe we can get a honest vote. It is a shame the way this vote has been taken so far, only two notices stuck up somewhere every nine miles and in our unit not at all, yet we have to pay on an average for expense, $25.00 each for every vote cast for and against.

Trusting this will be considered fair as I have left out some of the worst features of the bill, I am yours, etc.,
